City will formalize plan to make part of Jefferson six lanes

■ Four-year old traffic study showed Jefferson Blvd. will need to be six-lanes wide south of the Club Pheasant restaurant, so city hearing on the subject should come as no surprise, says planning director

By Steve Marschke

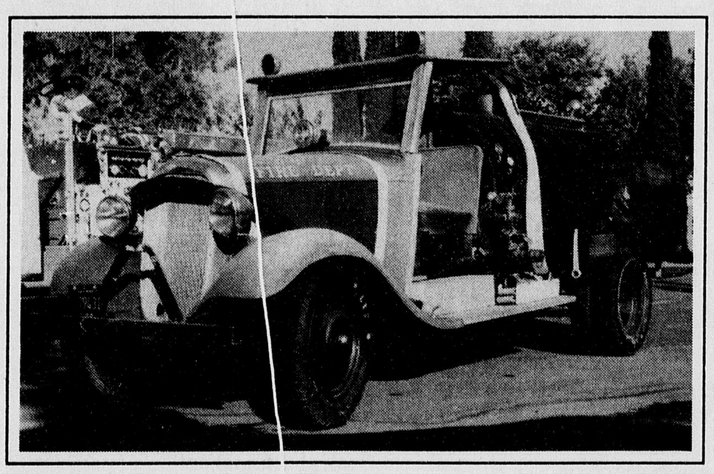

The West Sacramento City Council plans a public hearing Sept. 18 to firm up plans for a Jefferson Blvd. expansion between Marshall Rd. and the Arlington Oaks subdivision area. But the move merely firms up long-standing city plans for the expansion to six lanes, said Steve Patek, West Sacramento's community development director.

"It was envisioned and known that Jefferson was going to need to be expanded," said Patek, citing a four-year old city traffic study and traffic model. "This design was envisioned when PBR was planning."

Patek added that area residents had received notice of the

Antique water tender sits in the back lot of West Sacramento's Harbor Blvd. fire station, awaiting restoration

In addition to the volunteer-build "Old Mary" fire truck, city officials plan to donate an antique "tanker" fire truck to the West Sacramento Historical Society, said Mike Collins, Division Chief of the West Saramento.

"Old Mary," built by local volunteer firefighters over a half century ago, and now sitting at the 15th St. fire station in disrepair, is familiar to News-Ledger readers from an article several months ago.

But the water tender -- sometimes called "The Winebarrel" in reference to the wooden-staved water barrel mounted on its rear -- also awaits possible new ownership with the historical soci-

Music festival returns Saturday

■ Fourth annual music event is planned for noon-to-night on Saturday on the lawn at West Sacramento's First Nationwide Bank headquarters. The event is a fundraiser for the local parks department, and organizers hope it will break even for the first time.

By Steve Marschke

September is one of the most festive times of the year for West Sacramento, with back-to-back weekends of music and fun.

First comes the Riverbank Music Festival, back Saturday for a fourth time in its efforts to evolve into a fundraiser for programs of the West Sacramento Parks and Community Services Department. The festival, which last year headlined the rockers "Los Lobos," will bring a selection of artists alternating on two stages for nearly a day of music on Saturday at First Nationwide Bank, Stillwater Road, in the city's northwest.

The following weekend is Port Fest, with rides, ship tours, food, exhibits and other attractions at the Port of Sacramento, expected to draw thousands.

In order of performance beginning at noon at the music festival are Los Romanticos, Early Times Band, Paul Kamm & Eleanore McDonald, Jim Martinez Jazz, Denim, Chrome Addicts, Chris Webster & Friends, Mario Ellis Hill and the David Grisman Quintet.

Local county supervisor Mike McGowan will stage manage Stage 2 for the festival; Scott Raley will manage Stage 1.

Tickets are $17.50 at the door, and $15.00 if purchased in advance through such outlets as La Bou in West Sacramento. and Bass Ticket Outlets.

"We hope to sell about 800 tickets," said Don Schatzel, director of the parks and community services department.

Schatzel predicted "another enjoyable music festival for West Sacramento," saying everything wzs going well in planning for the event.

Once again, the festival is being organized by promoter Rudy Martinez.

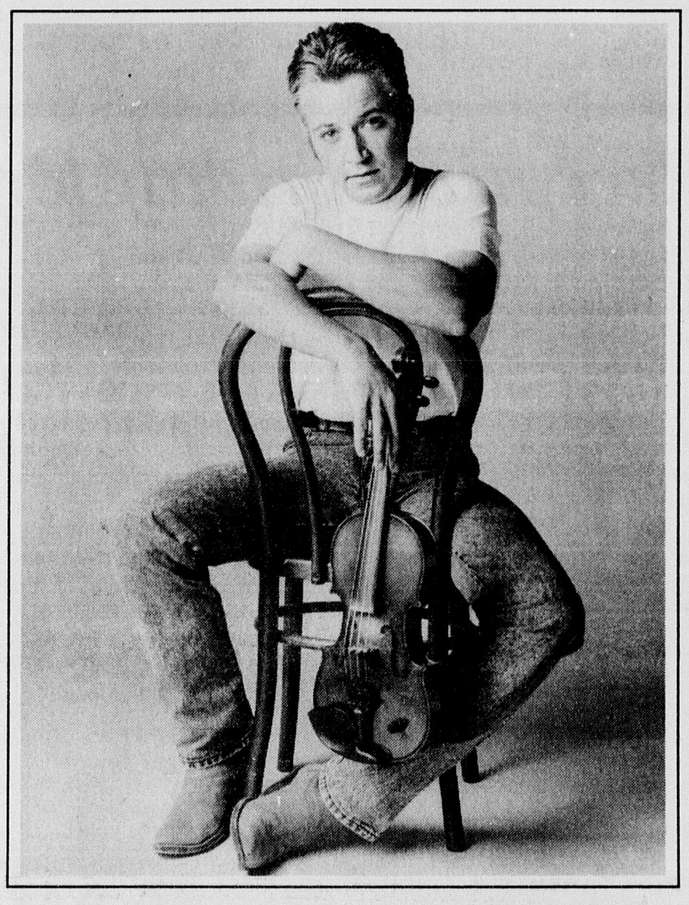

Staff involved in previous editions of the festival reported problems when scheduling conflicted with Labor Day weekend and when big name, big-price acts such as Los Lobos were booked. They also said some Sacramento-area music fans were reluctant to attend a function in West Sacramento because of the city's poor reputation in many circles, but were delighted by the pleasant, campus-like atmosphere of First Nationwide's facility. Repeat customers are expected this year, said Schatzel, and the event appears to be growing in regional stature.

Schatzel also reported that organizers have worked hard to hold down costs, including equipment costs, in order to help the bottom line.

The city has had to subsidize past events.

Major sponsors of this year's festival include First Nationwide Bank, Raley's, Arco, Bass Tickets, the Rice Growers Association (RGA), The Beat and La Bou.

For information on the 1996 Riverbend Music Festival, call 373-5860.

TWO OF THE HEADLINERS FOR THIS YEAR'S FEST:

ABOVE: Fiddler Scott Joss, who will bring country and vocals to West Sacramento at 6:45 p.m. Saturday; and BELOW: The David Grisman Quintet, to close the festival at 8:30-10 p.m. Grisman, the mandolinist at lower left, cites influences including Latin, jazz, bluegrass and gypsy.

Proposed $10,000 fine may be raised by state

Staff at the California Regional Water Quality Control Board have recommended raising a proposed $10,000 fine against West Sacramento to $25,000.

The fine is based on reported excess chlorine discharges into the Sacramento River from the city's South River Road sewage treatment plant. Public works director Jerry Lo said his department believed that many of the reports of excess chlorine were due to faulty sensing equipment, and that new equipment was being installed to rectify the trouble.

The $25,000 fine remains a staff proposal for the water board, and the board itself has the authority to approve or overturn it. The city of West Sacramento may decide to either pay the fine or appeal it to the board.

The city has paid several hundreds of thousands of dollars in fines related to its sewage treatment plant since 1992, and has engaged in a retrofit of the South River Road plant designed to alleviate operational problems.

At the time the News-Ledger first reported faulty procedures at the facility in 1992, city officials denied the problems, but have since pledged a policy of finding, disclosing and fixing the troubles.

Walgreen eyes West Sacramento location

By Steve Marschke

The Walgreen drug store chain is hoping to build a 13,500 square foot store on the southeast corner of Jefferson Blvd. and West Capitol Ave., at a vacant site which in earlier times had been home to a market and even an ice skating rink.

The location is north of the "La Bou" building on what is now an empty, paved area.

Martin Pierucci, a broker with Cook Realty in Sacramento, said the Walgreen firm is negotiating with the Parella family, owners of two parcels desired by Walgreen at the West Sacramento location. Necessary city permits have also not yet been obtained.

"They still need to get their conditional use permit from the city," said Pierucci.

Walgreen, the largest pharmacy chain in the country, is also eying new locations in Woodland, Arden Park and South Sacramento. The company shares ownership with Pay Less drug stores.

Across West Capitol Ave. from the proposed West Sacramento Walgreen location is a Thrifty drug store. The manager of that store declined comment on the impact a new Walgreen outlet might have on that store.

Pierucci said Walgreen does not have a firm timeline in mind for building and occupying a new West Sacramento location.

Correction

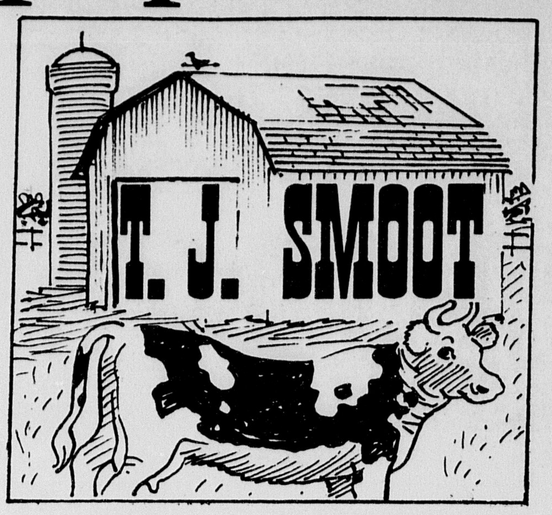

A photo and caption in the News-Ledger two weeks ago referred to a temporary bridge being built across the barge canal in West Sacramento. The bridge is being built as an aid to construction of the more permanent Daniel C. Palamidessi Bridge, joining the city's southern half to the Stone Blvd./Industrial Blvd. corridor heading west.

The caption referred to the temporary bridge having been built by Teichert Construction.

A reader pointed out that although Teichert is the contractor hired by the city for the project, MCM Construction is the subcontractor building the temporary bridge.

Family helps put the 'bear' into perspective

'T.J. Smoot' is the pen name of a neighbor of yours. His musings appear in this space every other week.

"Ooooo! Looks like you lay down on a slug," Mrs. Smoot said to me the other night as she inspected my back. We had just come in from watching our kids frolic on our lawn during the moonrise. It was one of those warm summer nights you hope your kids will remember into adulthood. Our little munchkins were chasing each other in the twilight, just for the sheer joy of running. They giggled when they ran into each other or when they twirled to the ground from dizziness. While the harvest moon rose in the evening sky, Mrs. Smoot and I reclined on the lawn chatting about "this and that." We tousled with the junior Smoots in the dusky air and later peered into the shadows to watch them "fix" our cars with their plastic tools. I couldn't help but reminisce back some 30 years when my siblings and I used to play "statues" at night, spinning and hopping around the yard and suddenly "freezing" when the command was given. Those statues still pose in the pleasant recesses of my memory, reminding me of friendly, innocent times when life was simple...playing a board game in the evening, biking home from school, or having a can of pop all to myself.

But now, of course, life is more complicated. Financial concerns and career development take up much of my thinking. A folk singer from the '70s knew about this well, and Jim Croce wrote in one of his songs, "Sometimes you eat the bear, and sometimes the bear eats you." Well, Mr. Bear had a mouthful of Smoot this month. Things broke down. I mean it seemed like everything broke down. The dishwasher timer stopped. The air conditioner in the van started smoking. Our car battery died. My bike chain locked up, and I just got a flat in my back tire. A cam corder (which we have borrowed) suddenly quit functioning right. Mrs. Smoot accidently kicked the control off the little, fuzzy walking dog. My son yanked the switch on an overhead fan until it broke, and we had to wash everything we own to rid ourselves of bugs. Work was no sanctuary from pain either. A manager told me I would have a "very" (read: No way, dude) difficult time if I attempted to promote to a management level, and last week I received a "not-so-gracious" rejection letter from a prospective employer. In a few words he said that my chances of working for him were like a snowball's chance of survival in "you-know-where." I felt defeated. So one night after work, I just sat down on our rock wall because I had to rest my soul. I couldn't take one more bear bite out of my behind. My shoulders slumped, and I sighed.

The kids were out scurrying around, and then they came up to "daddy." They just wanted to be around me, to touch their pop and grab a leg and give it a love squeeze. I felt a glimmer of unadulterated goodness. Then I realized that I was sitting on our rock wall. It looked pretty good, and I reminded myself that I had built it this summer over a period of weeks. Since many of the rocks weighed over 25 pounds, it wasn't an easy task, and I was proud of my accomplishment. Before I knew it, my kids and a stuffed, pink bunny had saddled up on one side of me to pose for a picture...all on the rock wall. During the quiet moment before the flash, I realized that I was a success at some things and hero to a few. I lifted my shoulders and smiled for the picture. It was a heartfelt smile.

Suddenly, all the negative events of this last month seemed insignificant compared to the refreshment that that moment gave me. I could relax because much of life came into focus. Things will always break, work stuff will come and go, but the joys of life often come in quiet moments, like this one on the wall. And so for now, I'll thumb my nose at Mr. Bear and chase my kids around the lawn until we all fall down, giggling.

Reception Friday for artist who depicts 'struggle to survive'

By Betty Fairbairn Sokolich
Exhibition Chairperson
East Yolo Friends of the Library

The selective and creative eye of Martin Anthony Salazar, Tino, interprets the world of the artist and presents a view that gives the viewer a new insight into his surroundings. The photographers seeks and finds the beauty in mundane objects and patterns created by nature, such as the ripples of sand left by the ebbing tide. Reflections of classical columns remind us of a bygone time of the Age of Reason, Order and Philosophy. Unexpected corners of Salazar's environment, such as the dead tree and rocky precipice, each repeating the texture of the mountain that proved to be too difficult a climate for the tree to survive. By accenting the struggle to survive the artist reminds us of the vicissitudes of life we, too, must endure. The artist organizes and records his experiences in his inner and outer world and uses the aesthetic principles of abstraction, expressionism, and imagination to project the interpretation into a visual statement.

Artist photographers are influenced by the same movements in art that are caused by the reaction to the particular time of the creation of the art work. Salazar's interest in the patterns of nature naturally follows his experiences hiking in Yosemite and other Sierra trails. The photos of the "Waterfalls" in Yosemite illustrate his love of the challenge of a climb.

The cityscape, especially San Francisco, has inspired many of Salazar's photos. The majesty and magnificence of a building made of glass creates a rhythmical pattern as one story after another reaches "Skyward." The human interest of the city comes out in the "Saxophone Player" who plays on and on hoping for a few donations for his efforts. The "Lunch Moment" depicts a tryst of two people snatching a few moments of total absorption with each other. "Graffiti" illustrates the innate need of people to leave a mark so that they will be remembered. "San Francisco Pier" is a monochromatic blue for the isolated quiet corner of a San Francisco pier.

The East Yolo Friends of the Library will host a reception for the young artist on Friday, September 6, at 6 p.m. The public is cordially invited to attend to meet Tino Salazar and enjoy viewing the prints.

The exhibit can be seen during regular library hours: Monday, 12 to 8 p.m.; Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, 11 a.m. to 8 p.m.; and Friday and Saturday, 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

The Sports Insider

By Richard Novoa

The 49ers opened the season, marching over the Saints with a convincing 27-11 win. The 49ers moved the football at will, taking a 24-0 halftime lead. The 49er defense was excellent, holding the Saints scoreless until the final quarter.

The Oakland Raiders didn't fare as well as the Niners, losing in Baltimore 19-14. The Ravens celebrated the return of NFL football to Baltimore before 64,000 wild and crazy fans!

Last week I predicted that the 49ers and Raiders would win their first games, but the Raiders fell apart in the fourth quarter. But I also picked the Bears to provide the first big upset of the season, and they didn't let me down. Chicago beat up on Dallas Monday night 22-6. The Cowboys looked pretty bad on offense, and Emmitt Smith was held to 70 yards and was injured late in the fourth quarter.

This week, the 49ers host the St. Louis Rams, and should be two-touchdown favorites. 49ers 31, Rams 13.

The Raiders travel again this week and are headed to arch-rival Kansas City, but this time the Raiders won't be the favorites. The Chiefs own the Raiders, beating them eight of the last nine games. Starting QB Jeff Hostetler returns, but it might not be enough to beat K.C. Chiefs 24, Raiders 23.

A great game to watch this week will be on Monday night in Green Bay, as the NFC Central Division champions host the Philadelphia Eagles. The league's MVP, Brett Farve, had a great opening week, throwing four touchdown passes in Green Bay's 34-3 win over Tampa Bay. The defense-minded Eagles will be an early test for the Packers. This Monday night game will tell us if the "Pack" is for real this season!!

Packers 27, Eagles 23.

Good news and bad news for Sacramento fight fans. The bad news is Sacramento lost the championship fight between Lopez and Campas that was originally scheduled for Aug. 16, then rescheduled for Sept. 5 at the Arco. Promoter Don Chargin couldn't coordinate a location in Sacramento to fit into the Spanish broadcaster's TV schedule.

The fight is being moved to the Los Angeles Sports Arena in October.

The good news is that in the week of Nov. 11, Willie Jorrin of West Sacramento will fight Eddie Croft in the re-opening of the Memorial Auditorium in downtown Sacramento. The downtown auditorium will be hosting a monthly boxing show that will feature top notch boxing, including Mexican champion Marcos Antonio Barrera.

See ya next week!!

Frosh squad is among the football teams at RC gearing up for another season

By Chuck Robinson

Last Saturday, the River City High School Freshman Football Team had a scrimmage with River City sophomores. The freshman team looked really good; the offense was able to move the ball real well against the sophomore team. The freshman defense held the junior varsity to very little gain. This team of freshmen, coached by head coach Chris Baker, really looked pretty good for having had only two weeks of practice.

The River City Freshmen will get a great work-out this Thursday, September 5, when they have a full scrimmage against Center High School. The game will take place at River City High School, 1100 Clarendon Street in West Sacramento, at 4 p.m. They will then travel to Rio Linda for a full-contact scrimmage jamboree on Saturday, September 7 -- starting time will be 8:30 a.m.

Come out and support the Freshman team and have a lot of fun. Coach Baker says, "I am very proud with the freshmen's performance. I think they are shaping up real well. I also think my coaching staff are doing a great job putting these kids in shape."

West Sacramento community is invited to support River City football in scrimmage against Center High on Thursday at RC. The freshman game starts at 4 p.m.

Someone could win a cool million in hole-in-one challenge to benefit area Latino junior golf chapter

Local golfers have a shot at winning a million dollars at a "hole in one" contest Sept. 7-15 at Lighthouse Golf & Country Club in West Sacramento. The event is a fundraiser for the Latino Junior Golf Association, which is creating a local chapter.

For "as little as $1 per ball," according to the California Hole-In-One event director, golfers can take aim at a flag stick 125 yards away. Any competitor making into a four-foot circle around the flag is invited to compete in semi-finals Sept. 15. The five best competitors from the semi-finals will have a shot at competing for a $1,000,000 hole-in-one grand prize.

There will also be daily prizes for golfers.

News-Ledger Editorial

Music Fest, cowardly writers & campaign reform

Good luck to the music festival.

It's a good event, and shows off West Sacramento in a positive light.

Let's hope it makes money this year -- or at least comes darn close. If not, it may be hard to justify doing the same thing again in the future, at least without major changes.

To the anonymous letter-to-the-editor writers of the world, including the pest currently plaguing the News-Ledger with negative faxes:

If you do not have the courage to sign your name while criticizing others, don't expect to share space on this page with those who do.

On campaign ethics:

One local city council candidate is trying hard to stake the high ground on this issue. Vowing not to accept contributions of more than $100 per contributor in order to prevent any undue influence or obligation, he asked his co-candidates to do the same.

Unfortunately, the request came too late for some, who had already accepted individual donations of up to $250 (the current maximum allowed by city ordinance).

So, either by accident or design, the candidate who called for increased "ethics" is alone on this "high ground" he created.

One of the other candidates responded to the call for ethics by saying that placing a cap on individual donations wasn't as important as limiting the total amount a candidate can raise. But this makes little sense.

To illustrate that point with an extreme example of why it doesn't make sense, let's assume that West Sacramento places a limit of $5,000 as the new maximum which can be raised by any single candidate for a campaign. Let's also assume the city drops the current $250 limit on donations from individual supporters.

Now let's follow two fictional candidates:

"Candidate A" has a huge base of supporters, and 5,001 of them give "Candidate A" $1 each, thereby breaking the new law.

"Candidate B," unknown or disliked locally, has but one supporter: the XYZ Corporation of Los Angeles, which donates $5,000 and finances "Candidate B's" entire campaign -- completely legally. The XYZ Corporation, by the way, has applied for permits to turn West Sacramento into a drive-through toxic waste dump.

In this make-believe scenario, the candidates have raised about the same amount of money, but using vastly different means. But one of them, the hugely popular "Candidate A," has broken a law and will face the consequences. "Candidate B," on the other hand, is certainly a bad person to have on the city council when it votes on the permit applied for by the XYZ Corporation, but has stayed within the law.

Does that law make sense? If elected, which candidate is more likely to be unduly influenced by a campaign contributor -- the one who depended a little bit on a lot of supporters, or the one who depended totally on only one?

Stop the transit district

(Copy of a letter to Governor Pete Wilson)

Re: AB2420 (Hannigan) creating the Yolo County Transit District

This is just another bill to create another single purpose government. I'm asking you to veto it.

As a former mayor, you no doubt recall the frustration of working with independent power centers within your jurisdiction. As important as transportation planning and operation are, we do not need to isolate them within the constraints of a statutory created, special interest, independent unit of local government.

A 36-page contract has been in place since 1989 which has governed this subject area. Yolo County and its four constituent cities adopted this language and set the stage for our very successful Yolo County Transit Authority which AB2420 would replace with this new special district. There is nothing in the legislation which could not be accomplished by amendments to our joint powers agreement. Why give up this flexibility and "close to the people" approach for another "state-mandated program" as the bill states?

If you sign this bill, you will be authorizing the creation of a new government with a total staff of five people with the exact same borders as the County of Yolo. Why do this?

Please join the cities of Woodland and Winters and the undersigned in opposing this needless expansion of government. Please veto AB2420.

TOM STALLARD
Third District Supervisor
County of Yolo

Pro-Adamo

I read the letters written by the City Council candidates for the two-year term, regarding campaign reforms. I am more in agreement with candidate Dorothy Adamo because we don't want the Michael Huffingtons of the world to buy elections.

Although I think the $100 campaign contribution is not a bad idea, the Huffington type candidate can still get all kinds of unlimited loans from family members. A large family, even with contribution limits, can contribute a great deal of funding.

Why should it cost $20,000, or more, to run for City Council, when a council member only receives $350 a month and puts in a lot of hard work and time? What's wrong with this picture?

I agree with City Council candidate Dorothy Adamo that a $5,000 campaign spending limit, which includes money contributions, "in-kind" contributions and loans, should be more than enough for anyone to win an election in West Sacramento

Three cheers for Dorothy Adamo.

New court is being built

The Yolo County Board of Supervisors and the Superior/Municipal Court announce the construction of an additional courtroom in the Woodland Courthouse. Construction begins in early September and will be complete by November.

This courtroom satisfies a critical need for space for Judge Timothy L. Fall, who was appointed by Governor Pete Wilson in July 1995. Since August, 1995, the Court has used the Board of Supervisor's Chambers, and shifted calendars to accommodate the lack of one courtroom. This additional courtroom is expected to reduce the inconvenience the public has experienced due to constantly shifting locations.

West Sac officials credit Sen. Johannessen for bill on bids

From The City of West Sacramento

West Sacramento officials were informed earlier this month that Governor Wilson had signed Senate Bill 1914 into law. This legislation was introduced by Senator K. Maurice Johannessen at the request of the West Sacramento City Council.

SB 1914 authorizes the cities of West Sacramento and Davis to serve as demonstration projects for utilization of an alternative approach for public works contracting in which combined design and construction bids would be solicited for projects under $50 million. General law cities without this authorization are required to solicit design and construction bids separately. The authority to utilize this alternative approach sunsets on January 1, 2001.

The "design-build" approach will significantly improve the ability to complete public projects on time and within budget, according to city officials. It is anticipated that the experience of both West Sacramento and Davis during the demonstration period will show "design-build" to be a viable approach that should be made available to the rest of the general law cities in California. Meanwhile, it will be saving the citizens of our two cities both time and money, they added.

The water tender currently resides in the back lot at the city's Harbor Blvd. station.

"I would hope it will be gone next week," said Collins. "This is kind of a historical vehicle for the city, so we were really looking for someone like the Hayes Trucking Museum (in Woodland) or a state museum to take it. But this is even better, keeping it in town with the historical society.

The non-profit organization hopes to take possession of the two vehicles (which are currently listed as city "surplus") as early as this week.

Louisa Vessell of the historical society said her organization hopes to raise money to restore the units for use in civic events such as parades.

If no historical nickname is turned up for the water tender, there may even be a public contest to name it.

Details on the two trucks are hard to come by. But Collins said the water tender may be based on a 1928 Chevrolet chassis, and Louisa Vessell said she heard it was turned into a tanker in the 1930s and used by the Bryte (northwestern neighborhood) fire district long before West Sacramento incorporated.

"Old Mary" may have been built in the 1920s, also by volunteers, and also at the Southern Pacific Railyards in Sacramento.

Anyone interested in information on the three-year old historical society may call Vessell at 372-3453.

School meals for low income

The Washington Unified School District has announced its policy for providing free and reduced price meals for children served under the National School Lunch and Breakfast Programs. Each school or the central office has a copy of the policy, which may be reviewed by any interested party.

A household size and income criteria will be used to determine eligibility for free and reduced price benefits. On a sliding scale, families with a household size of one person and a maximum yearly income of $10,062 will be eligible for free meals; those with a household size of eight people and a maximum yearly income of $33,904 will be eligible for the same. Also on a sliding scale, families with a household size of one person and a maximum yearly income of $14,319 will be eligible for reduced price meals; those with a household size of eight people and a maximum yearly income of $48,248 will be eligible for the same. Children who are members of food stamp households, Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) assistance units, or receive benefits from the Food Distribution Program on Indian Reservations (FDPIR) are automatically eligible regardless of the income of the household in which they reside. Eligibility for a foster child is based on the child's income.

Application forms are being distributed to all households with a letter informing households of the availability of free and reduced price meals for their children. Applications are also at the principal's office in each school. To apply for free or reduced price meals, households must complete the application and return it to the school. Applications may be submitted at any time during the school year. The information households provide on the application will be used for the purpose of determining eligibility and verification data. Applications may be verified at any time during the school year by school or other program officials.

For school officials to determine eligibility for free and reduced price benefits, households receiving food stamps, AFDC, or FDPIR benefits only have to list their child's name, and food stamp, AFDC, or FDPIR case number, and an adult household member must sign the application. Households who do not list a food stamp, AFDC, or FDPIR case number must list the names of all household members, the amount and source of the income received by each household member, and the social security number of the adult household member who signs the application. If the household member does not have a social security number, the household member must indicate that a social security number is not available. The application must be signed by an adult household member.

Households that list a food stamp, AFDC, or FDPIR case number must report when the household no longer receives these benefits. Other households approved for benefits based on income information must report increases in household income of over $50 per month or $600 per year and decreases in household size. Also, if a household member becomes unemployed or if the household size increases, the household should contact the school.

project long ago, and that all the city council was planning to do on Sept. 18 was bring the city general plan into tune with established traffic plans.

PBR is the firm West Sacramento selected to master-plan the 7,000 acre Southport area, located south of the barge canal and including the stretch of Jefferson the council will deal with on Sept. 18. Keeping infrastructure costs -- such as road building costs -- down was a major bone of contention when the PBR and the three design firms it was competing with laid out there scheme for development in the area.

PBR's plan called for a Southport "parkway" loop around the edges of the region. But Patek said it was known during the design period that this "loop" would require a major arterial down the middle, as well, connecting the southern reaches of the area with the planned new road leading to the Daniel C. Palamidessi Bridge, which is now under construction.

North of this connection, the road will require only four lanes, said Patek.

The six-lane expansion, which could be combined a scheduled city/state renovation of the Jefferson corridor north to the freeway in the year 2000, won't be needed until development starts taking off in Southport.

"It might be easier just to do it all at once," Patek commented.

The six-lane expansion of the boulevard's southern stretch through West Sacramento will mean the city will have to buy land bordering the road from private landowners. This could include a "condemnation" process including the "eminent domain" principle, by which the city can force the sale at market value even if an owner is reluctant.

One neighbor of Jefferson Blvd. called the News-Ledger and said area residents will protest the six-lane expansion, and that the construction project would mean the city will have to "take" nine or ten feet of her property. The woman declined to give her name.
